

Abstract

A timing display device for use in sports such as basketball. The display includes consists of two indicators which move in unison towards a central location. In a preferred embodiment of the invention, the The display often includes consists of a series of lights which give the impression of a line reducing in length over a the time period.